

More Back in Action

Since the last two events on The Ladies European Tour, India and Dubai, I have taken some time off away from golf. However, after the new year, I was invited to play in a pro-am at Desert Springs, Almeria, Spain.

This event was run by a good friend of mine, Becky Brewerton, and Christine Langford, who is the teaching professional at Desert Springs.

I was invited to play in the event last year, where I played with the amateur team that actually won the event. There were about ten of us this year, that were invited to play from The Ladies European Tour and I was very pleased I had been asked to take part again.

It was a fantastic opportunity to get away to some better weather, do some practice, play a lovely course and see my friends from The European Tour.

The event comprised of two days golf, the first day being a Texas scramble and the second day being the two best scores to count on each hole.

I was actually drawn with the winning team from last year for the first days' play, and I have to say both my team and I were very pleased with this. The team were Spanish Angel, Enrique and David. It was really nice to have the opportunity to play with them again, to pick up where we left off last year and catch up on what we had all been up to.

Needless to say they didn't win the event this year, but they came in a commendable second place.

We were all drawn with a different group for the second day and it was nice to meet and play with some other members from The Desert Springs Resort.

It was only a brief trip but one which I thoroughly enjoyed. Hopefully I will be invited to play again next year!

For the moment, I am now at home and I have started to practice again for the ensuing season. I am currently booking my next exciting trip to the Heritage Golf and Spa resort in Mauritius with Chaka Travel and very much look forward to the rest and relaxation as well as the warm weather!!

You can follow my progress now on my new website www.famemore.co.uk it has all my latest results, information and news headlines.
